

THE DAILY SENTINEL is two cents a copy, ten cents a week, forty cents a month, $4.80 a year—either by carrier or mail.

THE WEEKLY SENTINEL is 5 cents a copy, fifty cents per six months, $3.00 a year, in clubs of ten or more, ninety cents a copy one year, and a free copy to the letter up of the club—cash in advance.

ADVERTISEMENTS: In the Daily or Weekly Sentinel a line (seven words) each insertion in local column. No charge less than twenty-five cents. Amusements, "meetings," "lectures" and special notices on the first page in large type, ten cents a line. Nothing less than fifty cents. Announcements of "wanted," "lost," "found," marriages and deaths, twenty-five cents.

Checks and money orders to be made payable to E. A. K. HACKETT.

The average circulation of THE DAILY SENTINEL, exceeding that of any paper in the state, outside of Indianapolis, shows how completely it maintains its superiority as the most effective and economical advertising medium in the west. Not only in the number of papers sold, but in the character of its audience, it stands higher than any other journal in the state, published outside of Indianapolis. THE SENTINEL is read by the most intelligent and prosperous class of people in Northern Indiana.

THE BERNHARDT does not seem to have prospered very greatly, either in Canada or Connecticut.

MORE and more of it. Two steamers yesterday brought $1,827,000 from across the water, with indications of more to follow.

WE take it for granted "the ancient mariner" was a member of "the tow path club." But tow path club or not, he sticks to the canal business.

THE Lafayette Journal sits down with all its avowals upon the Cass county senator's project to reduce the present number of members of the legislature one half.

It is said that Judge Wood's vacant judgeship is to be filled by "another Ohio man." People are beginning to wonder how many more of them there are left in the woods.

THE thermometer is said to have indicated eight degrees below zero yesterday, but our nose and ears indicated a lower range than that as we came down street this morning.

At the Ponca Indian talk with Secretary Schurz yesterday, some of the chiefs signed a paper asking an allotment of land to themselves in severalty and surrendering their tribal rights in the balance of them on such allotment being made.

We have read the story of an old man in Cleveland selling the corpse of his daughter and buying whisky with the proceeds for about the one hundredth time, and are getting tired of it. We hope it will not be printed again. We never did believe it, and what is more, we don't intend to.

The Delphos narrow gauge railroad has been completed all the way from Toledo by way of Delphos, Decatur, Bluffton, Warren, Marion to Kokomo. From Kokomo to the coal fields in Fountain county, we understand, the track is in great part ready for use. If some of our citizens who some year or so ago undertook to build a narrow gauge railroad into the Brazil and Terre Haute coal fields, find that job too difficult for them, they may get all the coal they need and of as good quality, too, by the less costly enterprise of building the thirty miles of narrow gauge road between this city and Warren. Why not try that?

The suicide of the president of the Swiss confederation is attributed to temporary insanity. The relatively small majority by which he was elected president is stated to have greatly disappointed him. He seems not to have derived the slightest comfort or encouragement from the facts in the case of our President Hayes, who not only did not receive any majority at all over his competitor, but, in fact, fell far behind him. Yet Hayes seems never to have felt any such shame or mortification under the circumstances as the Swiss president sunk under. The moral of the lesson would seem to be, either the Swiss president was entirely too sensitive about election returns, or else the American one was not enough so. Certainly there was a great difference of conduct between them.

THE West Point academy does not seem to be the only place in which school troubles grow up on the color line. There is the same state of things in the republican city of Richmond.

In fact the trouble seems likely to occur in any locality, regardless of the political or partisan sentiments of the people. If any of the state white people are asked indifferent about the matter of color in the public schools, Richmond, the republican stronghold, might be supposed to be so. But it does not seem so. On the contrary, the school board there seems as little disposed to recognize the equal legal and political right of colored children in the public schools as in Memphis or Mississippi.

GRANT is said to look with coldness upon Blaine, and to treat him with marked discourtesy. When Blaine called to pay his respects, on Grant's arrival at Washington, the latter declined to see him. It was not to be wondered at, therefore, that, when Grant dropped into the senate shortly afterwards, and all business was suspended for a while out of compliment, and to allow opportunity for senators to shake hands with him, that Blaine sat still and refused to stir. No cards received, no congratulations, was the sentiment of his action. And Blaine was right, but it was not right for the republican press generally to attribute Blaine's dogged discourtesy to "northern democrats." But, then, this world, and more particularly the lump of republicanism in it, is terribly given to lying and deceitfulness at times.

THE price of hay in this market continues remarkably high, when the great yield of last summer and the splendid condition of the roads for teaming is taken into account. Since early fall it has ranged from ten to fifteen dollars per ton in price, and has been at no time to be had in large quantities at that. In past years the prices now paid for hay would have brought in team-loads of it so thick as hardly to find standing room, and that without regard to the condition of the roads. But that state of things exists no longer. The many railroads have supplied the farmer with a market at his own door, and he can sell his hay to be baled and shipped to other markets. It is this that makes hay scarce and high priced in town, and yet the average farmer could hardly be induced to lend a helping hand to another railroad enterprise. So much has been done for him by other people in the way of railroad building that he has got used to it, and grows less and less inclined to do anything in that direction himself.

THE grandest mining enterprise ever projected in Colorado is to cut a tunnel "clear through the back-bone of the continent as you would punch a hole through a potatoe." This is the way a Leadville paper states the project, and then anticipates its results as follows: "The tunnel is to be cut clear through the mountain, a distance of 26,000 feet, (about 4 8-9ths miles,) all the way crossing heavy veins of silver ore at right angles"—All this is well, but why cut the tunnel at all, when there is a mountain of silver ore in Alaska that is said to yield all the way up to $6,000 pure silver to the ton and to be, to all appearances, inexhaustible, and that can be got at and brought away without cutting any tunnel at all? Might it not be as well to hold this colossal bonanza in reserve, and not begin to tunnel into it until the merits of that in Alaska shall have been tested both as to its richness and the inexhaustible character of its supply? But then it was always the way with our American people to make free with a good thing when they have it, and we suppose they will proceed with both the Colorado tunnel and the Alaska mountain just as though there were no chance of either of them failing to respond in profitable results. But what is to be done with all the silver?

The Geodetic Survey of Indiana.
The preliminary reconnaissance for suitable sites for the observing stations in the geodetic survey of Indiana was completed during the summer of 1880, and the work of triangulation will probably begin near New Albany during the summer of 1881. The territory embraced in the selections is from ten to twenty miles wide, extending from the Ohio river to the Michigan line, and includes the towns of New Albany, Jeffersonville, Charlestown, Scottsburg, Seymour, Brownstown, Columbus, Edinburg, Franklin, Indianapolis, Irvington, Oaktown, Whitestown, Tipton, Frankfort, Kokomo, Bunker Hill, Logansport, Peru, Rochester, Maxinkuckee, Plymouth, Elkhart, Mishawaka and South Bend. The survey generally lies along the Jeffersonville, Madison & Indianapolis and Indianapolis, Peru & Chicago railroads. The work is being done by the United States coast and geodetic survey, under the direction of Mr. C. P. Peterson, superintendent at Washington, and the portion in this State is in charge of Prof. J. L. Campbell, of Wabash College. The special object of the survey is the correct determination of latitude and longitude of the important points, and their location in connection with the already accurately determined ed coast and lake lines of the country. The work in this state also forms a part of a general scheme extending through Michigan, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama to the Gulf of Mexico, for the determination of the length of an arc of the meridian and the curvature of the earth. This is one of the most interesting problems in exact science. The method by which the work will be accomplished includes the selection of sections from five to forty miles apart, which may be made intervisible, and the accurate measurement of one or more base lines. Lines connecting the intervisible stations will form a series of grand triangles, and all the angles of these triangles will be carefully observed. A base line five miles in length was measured near Louisville, Kentucky, in 1879, which will be used for the triangulation north through Indiana and south through Kentucky. A second base line will be measured near South Bend, north of the St. Joseph river. In the selection of sites south of Indianapolis, advantage was taken of the range of knobs in Floyd, Clarke and Washington counties; the sandhills of Jackson county, and the rugged hills of Bartholomew, Brown and Johnson counties, along the west side of Professor Collets great glacial river. North of Indianapolis the country is generally level, except that the surface action of the waters of White, Wabash, El, Tippecanoe, Yellow and St. Joseph rivers gives an undulating surface to the otherwise flat and swampy, but elevated tableland. A comprehensive system of drainage for these table-lands, notably the northwest part of the state, is well worthy the careful attention of the legislature, in its threefold relation: 1, to the recovery of the lands for agricultural purposes; 2, the improvement of the general health; 3, to the pending proposition for the construction of a ship canal across the State.—Indianapolis Journal.

HEATING BY FRICTION.

The Novel and Useful Invention of a Boston Scientist.

Boston Herald.

A Boston gentleman has invented a simple device which, if its present promises are realized, ought to work a revolution in methods of heating. It is nothing less than an invention to use friction as a practical means of producing heat. At the time of the Ashabula horror, when so many persons were burned to death by the wrecked cars catching fire from the stoves, Mr. Webster Wells, then professor of mathematics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, began to consider the problem of heating the cars without fire. He has now solved it. His invention consists of a strong iron cylinder, at one end of which, inside, is a fixed plate of hardened iron, against which, firmly attached to a revolving shaft, another plate presses either closely or lightly, as required. The cylinder is filled with water, and this heated by the friction of the two plates, circulates through pipes, warming the room through which they run, just as steam pipes do. The water is kept in constant circulation in these pipes, returning to the cylinder to be heated over again. The water in the cylinder, which is brought to a high degree of heat in a remarkably short time, keeps the plates lubricated, preventing their wearing away at a rapid rate. When worn away the cost of renewing them is trifling, and the machine has no complicated work about it, so that it is easily kept in repair. The power required to run the machine is so slight that the waste or surplus power of the engines in use for running elevators and other machinery in hundreds of buildings throughout a city is enough for all ordinary purposes. The machine can be utilized in any place where power is used. The ordinary sized machine has thirty-six square inches of friction surface in its plates, sufficient, it is said, to heat 10,000 cubic feet of space. This requires but half a horse power. A machine with 225 square inches of friction requires but four-horse power, and would heat a room 60x200 feet, or containing 126,000 cubic feet. In railroad cars the machine is operated by power taken direct from the wheels, doing away with all danger from fire in case of a smash up. When the cars are standing still the machine can be operated by power from the locomotive, by a contrivance somewhat like that which operates the Westinghouse brake. In mills it is calculated that a great saving can be made, both in fuel and in the rate of insurance, especially in those run by water power. The agent of a mill where water power is used estimated that in twenty years, by the use of this device, a saving of at least $185,000 in fuel alone could be effected. Prof. Wells is now in Europe, looking out for his patents there. The machine has now been in operation in Boston for seven months.

Sweet Pork.

Western pork is not New England pork, but the flavor of the western article could be much improved. It is beyond a doubt that cleanliness has much to do with that. The filthy state in which fattening hogs are kept has a tendency not only to give a rank taste to the meat, but to render it positively unwholesome. By many it is claimed that pork is unfit for use, anyway, but when properly cooked it seems to be indispensable, especially in many instances on the farm. A very common mode of penning hogs at this season is a rail pen, without protection from the weather. The consequence is that such pens are not fit to keep a living animal in; wet, filthy, cold and uncomfortable hogs will not take on fat, and a great portion of the food fed them is wasted, while the hogs will consume a considerable amount of filth, which is detrimental to their health and to the health of those who consume the meat.

WATER WORKS.

Their Successful Operation, and Opinions on Their Value to Our City.

A reporter of THE SENTINEL called at the water works office this morning, and applied his double action hydraulic pump to the gentlemen in charge of the place as to their opinions in regard to the works, and the benefit to be derived from them. There have been twelve service connections already made, and those who are using the water are exceedingly well pleased. More connections would have been made, but the work could not be accomplished on account of the extremely cold weather. There are now forty-eight applications for water on file in the office and more are coming in continually. The Aveline house and the Globe restaurant were connected today. Mr. Frank Iten, a gentleman who has had much experience with water works in other cities, says, in his opinion our works are bound to be a success, as the people will soon be educated up to the point where they see the benefits to be derived from the use of this water, not only on account of its being handy when once introduced into the house and doing away with the freeing of pump drinking wild water during rainy weather and the filth from back yards on low lots. He also thinks the water from the well at the engine house is both pure and healthy, is much softer than that from any ordinary pump, and will better please every lady who appreciates good, pure water. The engines first started to work on the 14th of this month, and have now pumped between 8,000,000 and 9,000,000 gallons of water, and the water in the well is now four inches higher than it has been at any time. This would seem to settle the question as to whether the supply would be sufficient or not, as all the pipes are filled, and when the citizens commence to use the water for general purposes there is every reason to believe that the supply is ample. There are now no leakages in any of the fire plugs, and every thing is in admirable working order all over the city. There are only from twenty-five to forty pounds pressure to the square inch used at the engine house, and this is ample for all present needs—this can be increased to 150 pounds should occasion require it. There will be no formal test of the works before spring, as, at present, it would be dangerous to do so on account of cold weather, etc. We are glad to be able to announce to our readers that competent judges think our water works are as good as any now in operation in other cities, for there has been enough money expended to put them in good trim.

To-morrow we will publish a map showing the streets on which the pipes are laid, with explanatory remarks in regard to the various sizes of the same, etc.

AMUSEMENTS.

NELLA F. BROWN,

who gives an entertainment at the Academy of Music in this city, on Thursday evening, December 30th. The Rev. Henry Ward Beecher says: "I have known Nella Brown since her advent as a public reader, and regard her as one of the few, out of a great many, whose readings are thoroughly enjoyable. An audience must be unwisely critical that is not pleased with her readings. Most estimable in character, attractive in appearance, and thoroughly lady-like, I can freely and cordially commend her and her performances to the wise and good in every community."

MINNIE PALMER.

A fair audience gathered at the Grand last evening to witness the farcical comedy of "Boarding School." Miss Minnie Palmer is a bright, vivacious little lady, with a pretty laugh and good songs. She possesses a rich, though not powerful voice, and frequently sang during the performance. It is to be hoped that an actress of Miss Palmer's ability will eschew such a flimsy production as the one presented last night, and devote her time and talent to something more artistic, wherein she could display her charms and acting to better advantage. The rest of the company were fair in their parts and the audience seemed well pleased with the troupe, but restless on account of the house being too cold.

BANK J. FRAYNE

appears at the Academy of Music Saturday afternoon and evening in the border drama, "Si Slocum." Mr. Frayne is a good actor and a first-class rifle shot and executes some brilliant shots on the stage. He also introduces his famous dog, "Jack," and a large black bear. This drama is something on the Buffalo Bill style of things and will undoubtedly draw a large audience.

BIJOU.

The Bijou has a fair audience last evening and presented the same attractions of the evening before.

The Busted Sewer Question.

The case of John M. Coombs vs. the City of Fort Wayne is on trial in the superior court before the following jury: Jesse Foster, George B. Lawrence, John McClave, Nathan Brunson, Conrad Tielker, John Dietrich, Mathias Holloper, Solomon C. Chapman, John Thimmler, Adolph Parvin and Valentine Meyer, eleven jurors.

As resident taxpayers of the city are disqualified from serving as jurors, where the city is a party in interest, the panel is composed entirely of persons residing in the country.

This case is one of several brought against the city to recover damages for losses sustained to goods by the breaking of the Clinton street sewer last July.

The sewer runs along Clinton street and under the canal, at which point it caved in, and being insufficient to carry away the enormous quantity of water that poured into it, the water backed up in the sewer and into basements and cellars, by means of pipes connecting with the sewer. Goods stored in those places were badly damaged, and the loss will amount to many thousands of dollars.

Coombs, Morris and Bell, and Taylor and Morris are the plaintiffs' attorneys and W. G. and H. Colerick attorneys for the city. A great many witnesses have been subpoenaed and the case will be closely contested.

Mr. O. L. Perry, manager of the Western Union telegraph company, about 8 o'clock in the morning of July 21st, while looking after the city's interest or something else, was first to discover the break.

Death of the Biggest and Most Valuable St. Bernard in the Country.

Monk, said to be the largest and most valuable St. Bernard dog in the country, died on Sunday morning of hemorrhage of the lungs. He was owned by D. P. Foster, of No. 29 South Fifth avenue. "I brought Monk," said Mr. Foster yesterday, "from the monastery of St. Gothard, in Switzerland, last August. He cost me $500, but I have refused $800 for him, and I valued him at $1,000. He was with me night and day while I owned him. He weighed about one hundred and seventy pounds, stood thirty-four inches from the shoulder to the ground, and measured six feet nine inches from his nose to the tip of his tail. He was two years old, of a tawny lion color, with large, lustrous, kindly hazel eyes, a heavy drooping jaw, and huge overlapping upper lips. His frame was massive, and his face beamed with intelligence. When he reared upon his hind feet he looked enormous and fierce, yet he had such a gentle and kindly nature that children delighted to play with him, and he with them. Every day I took him out into Washington square for his airing, and he was a great favorite with the nurses and children, and would poke his nose into every baby carriage that came near. He was a pure, rough-coated St. Bernard. His father and mother are yet employed by the monks of St. Gothard in hunting the mountain passes in search of unfortunate travelers. They are named Jungfrau and Monk, and they distinguished themselves in 1871 by saving the lives of several of a large party of monks, guides and travelers who were buried in an avalanche. The breed has been kept distinct by distribution among the gentry in the surrounding valleys, so that whenever an avalanche has buried an unusual number, the stock has been replenished. There are both rough and smooth coated St. Bernards similar in all characteristics, except the hair. The prevailing colors are tawny and brindle. The dogs that are marked with a white line about the neck and up the face are prized most, as their marks resemble the badge of the monks' order. Although Monk was only a year and a half old, he had been engaged in the work of saving travelers, and knew many of the mountain paths.

"He was a dog of exemplary behavior," Mr. Foster continued. "No man could enter the house at night without his permission, and none could go out unless I was there to give my consent. He was obedient, would fetch and carry, shake hands, lie down for the children to play with him, and give his old mountain howl of distress if he wanted help. He would not go out in the street unaccompanied, and then only when his toilet was properly made—his face washed and his hair combed. He understood simple commands in three languages—Latin, French and English. If there was a noise at the front door he would be the first there. If the bell rang at night he would come and wake me up by scratching at the door. His first mate was Minka, formerly the property of the duchess of Oldenburg. Monk had one peculiarity; he did not like soldiers, and when he met one he would step back and couch as if ready for a spring. The reason of it was that he had been struck when young by a soldier. He always seemed to remember that blow, the monks said, and I found it true. He always reminded me of the lines that I once saw on a picture of old Monk, his father: "In joy and sorrow I am my master's friend, Honest and faithful, bristles to end."
